

Statement SRGR _ CSW (61) March 2017

Mister Chair, distinguished delegates,

I am speaking on behalf of ( see list of countries below as of March 24, 2017)

First of all, we would like to thank you Mister Chair for your conduct of this session and we would like to give appreciation to the facilitator for her facilitation. We also would like to thank the other Bureau members and the secretariat for their support and guidance. We would also like to acknowledge the presence of civil society groups, for bringing important voices to these discussions.

The Commission has always been the setting where advancement of the rights of women was crystallized and promoted for consensus by all. Many years ago it succeeded in both drafting a comprehensive globally binding instrument, the CEDAW Convention, and setting the ground for a successful Conference and Platform for Action in Beijing.

Our countries have been, and continue to be, strong and vocal advocates for the full and effective implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action, which together with the CEDAW convention and the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development form a universal corpus of rights for women and girls worldwide. We back up this commitment through our policies in our own countries and through our support to sustainable development efforts abroad. We firmly believe that the full realization of human rights, achieving gender equality and realizing sexual and reproductive health and rights are essential for addressing women's economic empowerment, eradicating poverty and achieving sustainable development.

We believe that all individuals have the right to have control over and decide freely and responsibly on matters related to their sexuality, free of coercion, discrimination and violence – as a matter of social justice. Sexual and reproductive rights are about bodily integrity, equality and freedom of choice. We cannot look away from the fact that these rights are violated every day, in all countries. We believe that anyone, be it women, girls, men or boys, who are denied access to sexual and reproductive health information, education and services cannot achieve their full potential in public life, in the changing world of work and society in general.

We remain convinced that the promotion, protection, respect for and fulfilment of human rights of women and girls, including their sexual and reproductive health and rights, without discrimination on any grounds, is a critical enabler towards their economic rights, independence and empowerment, gender equality and sustainable development and is a requirement for the full achievement of Sustainable Development goals.

Thank you.
